FOR THOSE LOOKING FOR A FORMAL "STUDY" TEXT:

Acts of the Apostles: A Catholic Bible Commentary on the New Testament by Trusted Catholic Biblical Scholars - CCSS (Catholic Commentary on Sacred Scripture) – Illustrated, February 18, 2014
by William S. Kurz SJ (Author)

What message was the author of Acts seeking to convey, and what would the original audience have understood? How is God speaking to believers today through Acts as it has been used by the church throughout the centuries?

In this addition to the Catholic Commentary on Sacred Scripture, respected New Testament scholar William Kurz offers a close reading and explanation of the entire narrative of Acts, grounded in the original Greek but keyed to the NABRE for liturgical use.

The CCSS relates Scripture to Christian life today, is faithfully Catholic, and is supplemented by features designed to help pastoral ministers, lay readers, and students better comprehend the Bible and use it more effectively.

Commentary features include:

- Biblical text from the New American Bible, Revised Edition (NABRE)
- References to the Catechism, the Lectionary, and related biblical texts
- Theological insights from Church fathers, saints, and popes
- Reflection and application sections for daily Christian living
- Suggested resources and an index of pastoral subjects

Attractively packaged and accessibly written, the CCSS aims to help readers understand their faith more deeply, nourish their spiritual life, and share the good news with others.

"William Kurz combines the best of contemporary scholarship with the riches of tradition. His commentary is the fruit of a lifetime of work on Luke-Acts." - Jeremy Holmes, academic dean and assistant professor of theology, Wyoming Catholic College

FOR THOSE LOOKING TO DIVE DEEPER INTO A LUKE-SPECIFIC PARABLE:

The Return of the Prodigal Son: A Story of Homecoming – March 1, 1994
by Henri J. M. Nouwen (Author)

With over a million copies sold, this classic work is essential reading for all who ask, "Where has my struggle led me?"

Recommended reading for Community Prayer Challenge

A chance encounter with a reproduction of Rembrandt's The Return of the Prodigal Son catapulted Henri Nouwen on an unforgettable spiritual adventure. Here he shares the deeply personal and resonant meditation that led him to discover the place within where God has chosen to dwell.

As Nouwen reflects on Rembrandt's painting in light of his own life journey, he evokes a powerful drama of the classic parable in a rich, captivating way that is sure to reverberate in the hearts of readers. Nouwen probes the several movements of the parable: the younger son's return, the father's restoration of sonship, the elder son's resentment, and the father's compassion. The themes of homecoming, affirmation, and reconciliation will be newly discovered by all who have known loneliness, dejection, jealousy, or anger.

The challenge to love as God loves, and to be loved as God's beloved, will be seen as the ultimate revelation of the parable known to Christians throughout time, and is here represented with a vigor and power fresh for our times.

From the review on the Samaritan's Song website:

"If you're looking for a deep, well-thought-out discussion of a magnificent parable, this book is most certainly it. It is a quiet book, and a thoughtful one: there are no explosions of revelation, no catchphrases, no five-step guides to becoming a better believer. What there is, instead, is a stunning explication of what God's love really looks like, what it really means for us, and what that love has the potential to change.

If nothing else, this book confirmed for me that Nouwen is exactly the sort of writer and thinker that people painted him to be, and when it's possible, I look forward to diving into the rest of his work."

FOR THOSE LOOKING FOR BIBLICALLY-BASED FICTION:

Dear and Glorious Physician – 1959 by Taylor Caldwell

A biographical historical novel depicting the life of Saint Luke. It explores his journey from a dedicated Greek physician searching for truth to his eventual conversion and recording of the Gospels, lauded for its intense research, vivid, immersive portrayal of Roman-era decadence and spirituality.

Key Aspects of the Novel

- Detailed Character Study: The story presents Lucanus (Luke) as a real, complex human, tracing his intellectual and spiritual journey before he meets the Apostles.
- Vivid Historical Setting: Caldwell meticulously recreates the atmosphere of the ancient Mediterranean world, including Alexandria and Rome, capturing both the glory and corruption of the era.
- Themes of Faith and Medicine: The book explores the intersection of professional healing and spiritual fulfillment, showcasing Luke's dedication to medicine and his search for divine truth.

Review Consensus

- Praised for Research & Scope: Many readers consider it a masterpiece of historical fiction and one of Caldwell's finest works, often describing it as inspiring and emotional.
- Immersive Prose: Critics and readers alike note the rich, eloquent, and highly detailed style.
- Enduring Impact: It remains popular for its portrayal of faith and its detailed, empathetic look into Luke's life.

Common Criticisms

- Pacing and Style: Some readers find the writing dense and the narrative pace slow.
- Biographical Accuracy: Some readers and critics note that the portrayal deviates from biblical accounts, relying on imagined scenes for Luke's upbringing, which is largely unknown historically.

Dear and Glorious Physician is best appreciated as a "passionate statement of belief" and a deeply researched, moving story that makes a familiar saint feel profoundly human.

Summer with St. Francis

From the book The Life of St. Francis written by St. Bonaventure, a Franciscan monk and mystic, in 1260.

Week 5, Chapter 3

On the Foundation of the Order and the Approval of the Rule

While the servant Francis was living in the church of the Virgin Mother of God, he prayed to her who had conceived the Word full of grace and truth, imploring her with continuous sighs to become his advocate. Through the merits of the Mother of Mercy, he conceived and brought to birth the spirit of the truth of the Gospel.

One day when he was devoutly hearing a Mass of the Apostles, the Gospel was read in which Christ sends forth his disciples to preach and explains to them the way of life according to the Gospel: that they “should not keep gold or silver or money in their belts, nor have a wallet for their journey, nor two tunics, nor shoes, nor staff” (Matthew 10:9–10). When he heard this, he grasped its meaning and committed it to memory. This lover of apostolic poverty was then filled with an indescribable joy and said, “This is what I want; this is what I long for with all my heart.”

He immediately took off his shoes from his feet, put aside his staff, cast away his wallet and money as if accursed, was content with one tunic and exchanged his leather belt for a piece of rope. He directed all his heart’s desire to carry out and to conform in every way to the rule of right living given to the apostles.

Under divine inspiration the man of God now began to strive after Gospel perfection and invite others to penance. His words were not empty or joking, but full of the power of the Holy Spirit; they penetrated to the innermost depths of the heart, causing his hearers to be filled with amazement. In all his preaching, he proclaimed peace, saying, “May the Lord give you peace,” as the greeting to the people at the beginning of his sermon.

As he later testified, he had learned this greeting in revelation from the Lord. Hence, according to the words of a prophet and inspired by the spirit of the prophets, he proclaimed peace, preached salvation, and by his salutary warnings united in a bond of true peace many who had previously been in opposition to Christ and far from salvation. When the truth of the simple teaching and his way of life became widely known, certain men began to be inspired to live a life of penance. Leaving everything, they joined him in his way of life and dress. At that time there were but six men besides Francis in the Order.

St. Francis and Pope Innocent III

Pope Innocent III receiving St. Francis

One day while Francis was weeping as he looked back over his past years in bitterness, the joy of the Holy Spirit came over him and he was assured that all of his sins had been completely forgiven. Then he was rapt in ecstasy and totally absorbed in a wonderful light, his heart was expanded, and he clearly saw what would transpire for him and his sons in the future.

After this he returned to the friars and said, “Take strength, my beloved ones, and rejoice in the Lord. Do not be sad because you are few in number, nor afraid because of my simplicity or yours. For as the Lord has shown me in truth, God will make us grow into a great multitude and will cause us to expand in countless ways by the grace of his blessing.”

Another good man entered the Order, bringing the number of Francis’ sons to seven. Then like a devoted father, seek, share, rejoice - the way...

Francis gathered all his sons around him and explained to them many things concerning the kingdom of God, contempt for the world, the renunciation of their own wills, and the mortification of their bodies. Then he disclosed to them his plan to send them to the four corners of the world. For already the lowly and seemingly sterile simplicity of our holy father had brought to birth seven sons. And now he wished to call all the faithful of the world to repentance and to bring them to birth in Christ the Lord.

“Go,” said the gentle father to his sons, “proclaim peace to men and preach repentance for the forgiveness of sins. Be patient in trials, watchful in prayer, strenuous in work, moderate in speech, reserved in manner, and grateful for favors, because for all this an eternal kingdom is being prepared for you.”

The friars humbly cast themselves on the ground before God’s servant and received the command of obedience in the spirit of joy. Then he said to each one of them individually, “Cast your care upon the Lord and he will support you” (Psalm 55:22). This is what he used to say whenever he sent a friar somewhere under obedience.

Francis knew he should give an example to others and wanted to practice what he preached; so he himself set out in one direction with one of his companions. The remaining six he sent in the other three directions, thus forming the pattern of a cross. After a short time had passed, the loving father longed for the presence of his dear children; and since he could not summon them himself, he prayed that this should be done by God, who gathers together the dispersed of Israel.

It happened that, just as he wished, they all came together shortly afterwards quite unexpectedly and much to their surprise, through the kindness of divine providence, without being summoned in any human way. During those days four upright men joined them, increasing their number to 12 including Francis.

Seeing that the number of friars was gradually increasing, Christ’s servant wrote in simple words a rule of life for himself and his friars. He based it on the unshakable foundation of the observance of the Gospel and added a few other things that seemed necessary for their way of life in common.

He very much wanted to have what he had written approved by the Supreme Pontiff (Pope Innocent III); so he decided to go with his band of simple men before the presence of the Apostolic See, placing his trust solely in God’s guidance.

From on high God looked with favor upon his desire and comforted the souls of his companions who were frightened at the thought of their simplicity, by showing Francis the following vision. It seemed to him that he was walking along a certain road beside which stood a very tall tree. Drawing near, he stood under it and marveled at its height.

Suddenly he was lifted up by divine power to such a height that he was able to touch the top of the tree and very easily bend it down to the ground. Filled with God, he realized that the vision was a prophecy of how the Apostolic See, with all its dignity, would show him condescension; and he was overjoyed. He encouraged his friars in the Lord and set out with them on the journey.

When he arrived in Rome, he was led into the presence of the Supreme Pontiff. The Vicar of Christ was in the Lateran Palace, walking in a place called the Hall of the Mirror, occupied in deep meditation. Knowing nothing of Christ’s servant, he sent him away indignantly. Francis left humbly, and the next night God showed the Supreme Pontiff the following vision.

The pope saw a palm tree sprout between his feet and grow gradually until it became a beautiful tree. As he wondered what this vision might mean, the divine light impressed upon the mind of the Vicar of Christ that this palm tree symbolized the poor man whom he had sent away the previous day. The next morning he commanded his servants to search the city for the poor man. When they found him near the Lateran at Saint Anthony’s hospice, he ordered him brought to his presence without delay.

When he was led before the Supreme Pontiff, Francis explained his plan, humbly and urgently imploring him to approve the rule of life mentioned before. Now the Vicar of Christ was a man famous for his wisdom; and when he saw in the man of God such remarkable purity and simplicity of heart, such firmness of purpose, and such fiery ardor of will, he was inclined to give his assent to the request. Yet he hesitated to do what Christ’s little poor man asked because it seemed to some of the cardinals to be something novel and difficult beyond human powers.

There was among the cardinals a most venerable man, John of St. Paul, bishop of Sabina, a lover of holiness and a helper of Christ’s poor. Inspired by the Holy Spirit, he said to the Supreme Pontiff and his brother cardinals: “If we refuse the request of this poor man as novel or too difficult, when all he asks is to be allowed to lead the Gospel life, we must be

What's with the funny haircut?

During medieval times, clerics in a few orders (most notably Franciscans and Dominicans) were marked by a haircut called a tonsure.

The Tonsure

Saint Thomas Aquinas is cited as referring to the tonsure as a call for perfect virtue and royal dignity because it resembles a crown. Other theories are that it not only symbolized obedience and detachment but also became a symbol of the Crown of Thorns worn by Christ during His Passion and death.

According to the Catholic Encyclopedia, "Tonsure (Lat. tondere, 'to shear'), was a sacred rite instituted by the Church by which a baptized and confirmed Christian is received into the clerical order by the shearing of his hair and the investment with the surplice. As to the monastic tonsure, some writers have distinguished three kinds: (1) the Roman, or that of St. Peter, when all the head is shaved except a circle of hair; (2) the Eastern, or St. Paul's, when the entire head is denuded of hair; (3) the Celtic, or St. John's, when only a crescent of hair is shaved from the front of the head." Francis' Order bore the Roman tonsure.

Rev. Ambrose Little, O.P., of The Thomistic Institute explains that all monastic orders had this haircut. It was a sign that the individual was dedicated to divine service. "It seems to have arisen in early monasteries where the tonsure was a sign of flight from the world and worldly status," Rev. Little says.

According to Father Gregory Pine, O.P., another theory says that the tonsure was used as a tool to differentiate clerics from the general population. It was sometimes hard to tell a cleric apart from other people due to the way people dressed at the time. We don't experience the same problems today, which may be a reason why it is no longer required. Pope Paul VI abolished the tonsure in 1972.

– from EWTN Online

on our guard lest we commit an offense against Christ's Gospel. For if anyone says that there is something novel or irrational or impossible to observe in this man's desire to live according to the perfection of the Gospel, he is guilty of blasphemy against Christ, the author of the Gospel."

At this observation, the successor of the Apostle Peter turned to the poor man of Christ and said: "My son, pray to Christ that he may show us his will through you. When we know this with more certainty, we can give our approval to your pious desires with more assurance." The servant of Almighty God totally gave himself to prayer, and through his devout supplications obtained for himself knowledge of what he should say outwardly and for the pope what he should think inwardly.

Francis told the pope a parable, which he had learned from God, about a rich king who voluntarily married a poor but beautiful woman. She bore him children who resembled the king and for this reason could be brought up at his table. Then Francis added by way of interpretation: "The sons and heirs of the eternal King should not fear that they will die of hunger. They have been born of a poor mother by the power of the Holy Spirit in the image of Christ the King, and they will be begotten by the spirit of poverty in our poor little Order. For if the King of heaven promises his followers an eternal kingdom, he will certainly supply them with those things that he gives to the good and the bad alike."

When the Vicar of Christ had listened to this parable and its interpretation, he was quite amazed and recognized without the slightest doubt that here Christ had spoken through the man. And he affirmed that a vision which he had recently received from heaven through the inspiration of the divine Spirit would be fulfilled in this man. He had seen in a dream, as he recounted, that a little poor man, insignificant and despised, was holding up on his back the Lateran basilica, which was about to collapse. "This is certainly the man," he said, "who by his work and teaching will hold up the Church of Christ."

Filled with reverence for Francis, he was favorably inclined toward everything he asked and always held Christ's servant in special affection. Then he granted what was requested and promised to grant even more in the future. He approved the rule and gave them a mission to preach penance, and he had small tonsures shaved on the laymen among Francis' companions so that they could freely preach the word of God.

The Way

Summer Food Drive

School is out for summer and our kids are excited for all their favorite summer activities!

Yet 1 in 4 families with children in the Chicago area face food insecurity, and this hardship significantly intensifies during the summer months when school-provided meals are no longer available.

You can help us address this need by bringing non-perishable food items to church each week throughout the summer.

Items can be placed in the bins at the entrances to church, or children can bring them up during the offertory at mass.

If you would like to make a one-time or weekly donation for the purchase of food, please scan to visit Give Central.
