Meditation on Sunday's Gospel

Matthew 15:21-28

Does God ignore or act a bit rough with you? Jesus crosses the border into the pagan region of Tyre and Sidon, the territory long outside the covenant. There, a Canaanite woman calls out, "Have pity on me, Lord, Son of David." At first, he is silent. Then he rebuffs her. "It is not right to take the food of the children and throw it to the dogs." But the Church Fathers saw this not as an insult but as an initiation. Christ draws out of her heart a deeper faith.

She presses on. "Please, Lord, even the dogs eat the scraps that fall from the table of their masters." Jesus' silence and response solidify her humility and trust. She thus becomes a model for prayer for centuries of Christians. St. Augustine said she shows how sinners come to grace by moving from silence to humility to perseverance.

This woman is the Church. She is you and me. She is every soul who dares to cry out from the margins, who endures divine silence until it turns to compassion. When Jesus says, "O woman, great is your faith," it is the joyful cry of God discovering faith where the world least expects it. Even the smallest crumb of Your mercy, Lord, is enough to heal the soul. Do we have the courage to show faith like that?—

Father John Muir

Teen Advisory Board

We would like to recognize the three high school seniors who helped establish our inaugural Teen Advisory Board this year. The Board was created as another way to help keep our high school students engaged with the parish while promoting community service. These three outstanding student leaders answered the call and generously gave their time.

COLIN DAVIS is a graduate of OLPH and Glenbrook South. Colin played varsity football and basketball for the Titans while also becoming an Illinois State Scholar. He participated in our initial planning meetings last summer and volunteered making bag lunches for Our Lady of Angels at our combined project with teens from the Gift of Adoption in the fall. Colin also served meals to the homeless at A Just Harvest in Rogers Park with his family. He is now off to Madison to study Environmental Engineering at the University of Wisconsin.

KAITLYN BURNS graduated from Springman Middle School and Glenbrook South. Kaitlyn volunteered at the Chicago Marathon with Fleet Feet and helped plan and organize our Brown Bag Service Day in the spring with the Religious Education 8th graders. Her input at monthly meetings was always highly appreciated. Kaitlyn was a stellar member of the GBS cross country and track teams while receiving multiple athletic and academic awards. She will continue her education and running career at the Colorado School of Mines in Golden, CO.

SAMMIE OGNAR is also a graduate of OLPH and Glenbrook South. She made her mark as an extraordinary student athlete, becoming an Illinois State Scholar and member of the National Honor Society while being a top runner on the track and cross country teams. Sammie served with numerous clubs at GBS including as an officer in the Cure

Club (cancer awareness). As one of our charter members she guided the creation and direction of all our events throughout the year. She returned to OLPH in the spring as a coach for the Warrior track team. Sammie will be a Hoosier this fall when she enrolls in the Kelley School of Business at Indiana University.

Summer with St. Francis

From the book The Life of St. Francis written by St. Bonaventure, a Franciscan monk and mystic, in 1260.

Week 9, Chapter 7

On His Love of Poverty and the Miraculous Fulfillment of His Needs

Among the gifts of grace which Francis received from God, the generous Giver, he merited as a special privilege to grow in the riches of simplicity through his love of the highest poverty. ...He used to frequently call to mind with tears the poverty of Jesus Christ and his mother, claiming that it was the queen of the virtues because it shone forth so preeminently in the King of Kings, and in the Queen, his mother.

When the friars asked him what virtue does more to make a friend of Christ, he replied, as if opening up the hidden depths of his heart: "Know, brothers, that poverty is the special way to salvation, as the stimulus of humility and the root of perfection, whose fruit is manifold, but hidden. This is the Gospel's treasure 'hidden in a field' (Matthew 13:44); to buy this we should sell everything. Whoever desires to attain the height of poverty should renounce in some way not only worldly wisdom but also learning, that having renounced such a possession, he might enter into the mighty works of the Lord and offer himself naked to the arms of the Crucified. No one can be said to have perfectly renounced the world if he still keeps the purse of his own opinion in the hidden recesses of his heart."

A remarkable thing happened to Francis when he was going to the city of Siena. In a great plain between Campiglia and San Quirico, he was met by three poor women who were exactly alike in height, age, and appearance. They offered him the gift of a new salutation, saying: "Welcome, Lady Poverty!" When Francis heard this, the true lover of poverty was filled with unspeakable joy. They suddenly disappeared, and his companions concluded that this had some mystical meaning for Francis. It seems that these three poor women who were so alike in appearance, who gave such an unusual greeting, and disappeared so suddenly, appropriately showed that the beauty of Gospel perfection—in poverty, chastity, and obedience—shone forth all perfectly equal in Francis' mind, although he had chosen to glory above all in the privilege of poverty which he used to call his mother, his bride, and his lady. It was in poverty that he desired to surpass others because from it, he had learned to regard himself as inferior to all.

St. Francis and the three women

For love of holy poverty, Francis more gladly used the alms that had been begged from door to door than those that had been spontaneously offered. If he were invited by distinguished personages and they served a better table than usual in his honor, he would first beg some pieces of bread from the neighboring houses and then sit down at table, thus enriched by his poverty. He did this once when he had been invited by the lord bishop of Ostia. The bishop complained that Francis had disparaged the honor shown him by going out after alms when he was to share his hospitality at table. Francis replied: "My lord, I have shown you great honor in honoring a greater Lord. For the Lord is pleased with poverty and especially with that poverty which involves voluntary begging for Christ."

Once when the servant of the Lord was very ill at Nocera, he was brought back to Assisi by a formal embassy sent for that purpose out of devotion by the townspeople. While they were taking Francis back, they came to a poor little village by the name of Satriano. Since their hunger and the hour called for food, they went out; but, finding nothing for sale, they returned empty-handed. Francis told them: "You found nothing because you trust more in your flies than in God" (for he called knights flies). "Go back," he said "to the houses which you have visited and humbly ask for alms, offering God's love in place of money. Do not consider this shameful or cheap out of false esteem, because after man's sin that great Almsgiver has bestowed all things as alms to both the worthy and the unworthy, out of his abundant kindness." The knights put aside their embarrassment, readily begged for alms, and bought more with the love of God than with money.

At the time when he was lying ill in a hermitage near Rieti, a doctor visited Francis often to care for him. Since Francis was unable to pay him, the most generous God made up for the poor man and repaid the doctor with the following favor. The doctor's new house was threatened with collapse because of a wide crack in the wall. Fully trusting in the merits of Francis and out of the devotion of his great faith, he asked Francis' companions to give him something which the man of God had touched with his hands. After many requests, he obtained a small amount of Francis' hair, which he placed one evening in the crack in the wall. When he rose in the morning, he found that the crack had been so firmly closed that he could not pull out the hairs he had placed there, nor could he find any trace of the crack. And so it happened that because he had dutifully ministered to the body of God's servant in its state of collapse, he avoided the danger of the collapse of his house.

Another time, Francis wanted to go to a hermitage where he could spend more time in contemplation. Because he was weak, he rode on an ass that belonged to a certain poor man who then walked behind the ass up the mountain. The man became weakened by a burning thirst and began to cry out urgently: "Look, I'll die of thirst if I don't get a drink immediately." Without delay the man of God jumped off the ass, knelt on the ground, stretched forth his hands to heaven, and did not cease praying until he knew that he had been heard. Finally, when he finished his prayer, he told the man: "Hurry to that rock and you will find running water which this very hour Christ has mercifully drawn out of the rock for you to drink." How amazing is God's condescension, which bows so easily to his servants! A thirsty man drank water from the rock by the power of another's prayer. There was no stream of water there before, nor could any be found since, although a careful search was made.

Therefore, let all distrust be far from Christ's poor. For if Francis' poverty was so abundantly sufficient that it supplied by miraculous power the needs of those who came to his aid, providing food, drink, and housing when money, skill, and natural means we're lacking, how much more it will merit those things that are given to all in the usual plan of divine providence.

Fr. Barrett Book Club

(In honor of our late, great Fr. Jim Barrett, we have permanently named the Book Club for him.)

Book: "Return of the Prodigal Son - A Story of Homecoming"

by Fr. Henri J. M. Nouwen

Date & Time: Tue., Sept. 29, 7:00 - 9:00pm

Place: Conference Room 1, 3rd Floor Parish Center

All parishioners are invited to join us in reading "Return of the Prodigal Son - A Story of Homecoming" together and then meet in September for a lively discussion.

The Parable of the Prodigal Son is one of Jesus' greatest parables. It forces us to ponder the mystery of our all-loving God, and to see ourselves in each of the three characters in the parable. This is what Fr. Nouwen does after he encounters Rembrandt's moving painting "The Return of the Prodigal Son" for which his book is named. It is among the Dutch master's final works, likely completed within two years of his death in 1669. The painting is depicted on the book's cover.

This book and this painting were also of favorites of Fr. Jim Barrett. A copy of the painting actually has hung in the Barrett house for over 50 years and still does today. Below is a picture from the Barrett's home, courtesy of Fr. Jim's sister Suzanne Barrett.

For more information about our book club, please contact Jim Vlazny at jamesvlazny@aol.com

Creation and Ecumenism: Toward a Shared Christian Witness in an Ecological Age

Franciscan Friar James F. Puglisi, SA examines care for creation as an emerging ecumenical locus in which diverse Christian traditions find convergence without uniformity. Situating the ecological crisis as a theological challenge, he draws upon Orthodox, Catholic, and Protestant insights to articulate a shared anthropological and sacramental vision of creation. He proposes that a renewed Christian response to the ecological crisis must be grounded in prayer, liturgical awareness, and common witness rooted in the recognition of creation as gift and offering.

Father Puglisi is a member of the Franciscan Friars of the Atonement, where he served as Minister General from 2004 to 2014.
