Meditation on Sunday's Gospel

Matthew 18:15-20

A few summers ago, my family had a big reunion. It included my parents, my four siblings, and all their many children. One of my favorite moments was simply watching my parents' contented faces as they took in all of us together, laughing, sharing food, singing, telling stories. They loved seeing their children happily together with each other.

That is something like the heart of God we see in today's Gospel message about Christian reconciliation. These verses come right after Jesus' parable of the lost sheep. He is not giving the disciples a cold formula for dealing with conflict. He is revealing the Father's longing for children who love and reconcile with each other. His heart aches when his children are divided and isolated.

So when Jesus says, "Go and tell your brother his fault," He is not deputizing us as morality police. He is inviting us into his mission of reconciliation. When he adds, "If he listens to you, you have won over your brother," we glimpse the real goal. Not winning arguments, but reuniting a divided family.

These days, we often think religion is just between God and me. But the Father's dream is about a lively family, one in which His children forgive, gather, and rejoice together.

Lord Jesus, give me the courage to seek reconciliation where it is needed. Make my heart resemble the Father's heart, longing and working for unity among His children. Amen.

Father John Muir

- Students grade 7 through young adult are welcome.
- No audition required for singers. Instrumentalists are encouraged to audition.
- Rehearsals are in the church before the Mass at which they are singing, and sometimes on Tuesdays, 6:45pm (depending on the teen's availability).

The Children's Choir

A Peek at our Week

We joyfully celebrated our Opening School Mass for Grades K-8 as we began a new school year centered on our theme: Be You. Be Here. Belong. Our students sang with full hearts and helped set a joyful tone for the year ahead.

We were especially delighted to welcome Fr. John to his first all-school Mass with us! In his homily, Fr. John spoke about the importance of belonging and shared a proverb he learned in Africa: "If you want to go fast, go alone. If you want to go far, go together."

He encouraged our students to carry this message throughout the year - to look around, include others, and make sure every classmate feels that they belong. What a beautiful way to begin our school year ... together!

Summer with St. Francis

From the book The Life of St. Francis written by St. Bonaventure, a Franciscan monk and mystic, in 1260.

Final Week - Week 12, Chapter 14

On His Patience and His Passing in Death

Since Francis could not walk because of the nails protruding from his feet, he had his half-dead body carried through the towns and villages to arouse others to carry the cross of Christ. He used to say to the friars: "Let us begin, brothers, to serve the Lord, our God, for up to now we have hardly progressed." He was ablaze with a great desire to return to the humility he practiced at the beginning; to nurse the lepers as he did at the outset and to treat like a slave once more his body that was already in a state of collapse from his work. With Christ as his leader, he proposed to do great things; and although his limbs were failing, he bravely and fervently hoped to conquer the enemy in a new combat.

In order that his merits might increase—for these are brought to perfection in patient suffering—the man of God began to suffer from various illnesses, so seriously that scarcely any part of his body remained free from intense pain and suffering. He knew long in advance the time of his death, and as the day of his passing grew near, he told the friars that he should soon lay aside the tent of his body, as the date had been revealed to him by Christ.

Two years after the imprinting of the sacred stigmata, he asked to be carried to St. Mary of the Portiuncula so that he might yield up the spirit of life where he had received the spirit of grace. When he had been brought there, he wished to show by the example of Truth itself that he had nothing in common with the world. And so he threw himself totally naked on the ground so that in the final hour of death, when the enemy could still attack him violently, he would struggle naked with the naked enemy.

Lying like this on the ground, he lifted his face to heaven in his accustomed way and gave his whole attention to its glory, covering the wound in his right side with his left hand lest it be seen. And he said to the friars: "I have done my duty; may Christ teach you yours."

Pierced with the spear of compassion, the companions of the saint wept bitterly. Then one among them, whom Francis used to call his guardian, knowing his wish through divine inspiration, hurriedly arose, took a tunic along with a cord and underclothes, and offered them to the little poor man of Christ, saying: "I am lending these to you as to a beggar, and you are to accept them under the command of obedience." Francis was happy at this and rejoiced in the gladness of his heart because he saw that he had been faithful to his Lady Poverty up to the end. Raising his hands to heaven, Francis glorified his Christ because he was going to him, free and unburdened by anything.

The death of Francis

In all things, he wished to be conformed to Christ crucified, who hung on the Cross poor, suffering, and naked. Therefore, at the beginning of his conversion, he stood naked before the bishop, and at the end of his life, naked he wished to go out of this world. He enjoined the friars assisting him, under obedience and charity, that when they saw he was dead, they should allow his body to lie naked on the ground for the length of time it takes to walk a leisurely mile. O, he was truly the most Christian of men, for he strove to conform himself to Christ and to imitate him perfectly—while living to imitate Christ living, dying to imitate Christ dying, and after death to imitate Christ after death.

When the hour of his passing was approaching, Francis had all the friars who were there called to him and, consoling them for his death with words of comfort, he exhorted them with fatherly affection to love God. He long continued speaking about practicing poverty and patience, and about keeping the faith of the Holy Roman Church, and he recommended the Gospel to them before any other rule of life. While all the friars were sitting around him, he extended his hands over them and he blessed all the friars, both present and absent, in the name and power of Christ crucified.

Then he added: "Farewell, all my sons, in the fear of the Lord; remain in it always! Temptation and tribulation are coming in the near future, but happy are they who will persevere in what they have begun. I am hastening to God, to whose grace I commend you all." When he finished this gentle admonition, he ordered the book of the Gospels to be brought to him and asked that seek, share, rejoice - the way...

the Gospel according to John be read to him from the place that begins: "Before the feast of Passover" (John 13:1).

At last, when all of God's mysteries were fulfilled in him and his most holy soul was freed from his body to be absorbed in the abyss of the divine light, the blessed man fell asleep in the Lord. One of his brothers and disciples saw his blessed soul under the appearance of a radiant star being carried aloft on a shining cloud over many waters on a direct path to heaven. Larks are birds that love the light and dread the twilight darkness, but at the hour of Francis' passing, although it was twilight, they came in a great flock over the roof of the house and, whirling around for a long time with unusual joy, gave clear and evident testimony of the glory of the saint, who so often had invited them to praise God.

Upon his death, Francis' limbs became so supple and soft to the touch that they seemed to have regained the tenderness of childhood. The nails appeared black against his now shining skin, and the wound in his side was red like a rose in springtime, so it's no wonder the onlookers were amazed and overjoyed at the sight of such varied and miraculous beauty. His sons were weeping at the loss of so lovable a father but were filled with no little joy when they kissed on his body the seal-marks of the supreme King. This unprecedented miracle turned their grief into joy. So unique and so remarkable was the sight to all who observed it that it confirmed their faith and incited their love.

A great number of the citizens of Assisi were admitted to see the sacred stigmata with their own eyes and to kiss them with their lips. One of them, a knight, had doubts about these sacred signs and was unbelieving, like Thomas. Fervently and boldly, in the presence of the friars and the citizens, he did not hesitate to move the nails and to touch with his hands the saint's hands, feet, and side. While he was examining with his hands these authentic signs of Christ's wounds, he completely healed the wounds of doubt in his own heart and the hearts of others.

In the morning, the crowds that had assembled took branches from the trees and with a blaze of many candles carried his sacred body to the town of Assisi, singing hymns and canticles.

As they passed the church of San Damiano, where the noble virgin Clare lived at that time cloistered with her nuns, they stopped there for a short while so that those holy nuns could see and kiss his sacred body. When they arrived at the city, they reverently placed in the church of St. George, the precious treasure they were carrying. Our venerable father left the shipwreck of this world in the year of the Lord's Incarnation 1226, on Saturday evening, October 3, and was buried on Sunday.

* * *

Just as Francis shone in his life with the marvelous signs of virtue, so from the day of his passing to the present, in different parts of the world, he radiated forth with outstanding miracles through the divine power that glorified him. For the blind and the deaf, the mute and the crippled, lepers and those possessed by devils, the shipwrecked and the captives—all these were given relief through his merits. Thus the magnificence of the power of the Most High doing wonders for his saint shines forth to the faithful. To God be honor and glory for endless ages of ages. Amen.

Here Ends the Life of Blessed Francis.

We hope you enjoyed learning about the fascinating life of St. Francis this summer and how he fully surrendered his life, body, and soul to be Christ to every person he encountered.

2026 Annual Fall Prayer Program:
30 Days with a Great Spiritual Teacher

Peace of Heart

30 Days with St. Francis of Assisi

Begins Fri., Oct. 2 Ends Sat., Oct. 31

This month-long journey of morning and evening reflections provides a window into the teachings of St. Francis of Assisi. This beloved twelfth-century saint found true peace and sanctity only when he abandoned all his worldly possessions and ordered his life around the care of those in society who were the poorest and most vulnerable. If you enjoyed reading about his life in our Summer Bulletins, you will greatly benefit from spending time in contemplation and prayer with this holy man of God this Fall.

For each day there is a brief and accessible morning meditation drawn from the mystic's writings, a simple mantra for use throughout the day, and a night prayer to focus one's thoughts as the day ends. Our Fall Prayer Program is perfect for busy people who want to root their spiritual practice in the solid ground of a great spiritual teacher. We also offer a Friday Morning Prayer Group at 10 am in the Parish Center for those who enjoy communal prayer. Join us!
